

Magazine Article Exercise

It is easier to be fair and generous to yourself when you are looking through someone else's eyes.

Imagine you have been interviewed by a magazine of your choice. View yourself through the eyes of the interviewer, who wants to show you in the best possible light, showcasing all your skills, career highlights, and qualities in order to inspire their readers.

Write the interview in the third person, including a photograph.

Prompt questions

- # What is unique about you?
- # What details of your life have set you apart from others?
- # What were the reasons for you taking the career path that you have taken?
- # What obstacles have you overcome along the way?
- # What key personal characteristics have been valuable to you?